Requirements

1. Make the payment $$$

→ The costs are $149, which is equal to one attempt

2. Scan your passport

→ Advisable to do this one day before-hand

3. Take a selfie

→ Just making sure it's you!

4. Receive your verification

→ No need to start immediately, start whenever you want!

Google offers a study guide, which lists the areas that will be covered:

App functionality

→ Use Android's core to create apps: messaging, multitasking, connectivity & media services

User interface

→ Quickly create apps with clean, effective user interfaces provided by Android

Data management

→ Techniques to perform or schedule data retrieval/storage efficiently, on a mobile environment

Debugging

→ Understand the debugging tools in Android Studio

Testing

→ Write tests to create more reliability, with the intent of finding errors or unexpected behaviour

- How do I start the examination?

- Download the AADC plug-in: Includes the project, instructions & shows your remaining time

- How much time do I get?

- You get 8 hours of time, it used to be more.

- Am I allowed to use external resources?

- Yes, but only one instance of Android Studio can be opened

- Can I make the examination in Kotlin?

- Currently not yet, the examination changes every once in a while

- What if I fail?

- 1st attempt: Wait 14 days

- 2nd attempt: Wait 2 months

- 3th attempt: Wait 1 year

Exit interview

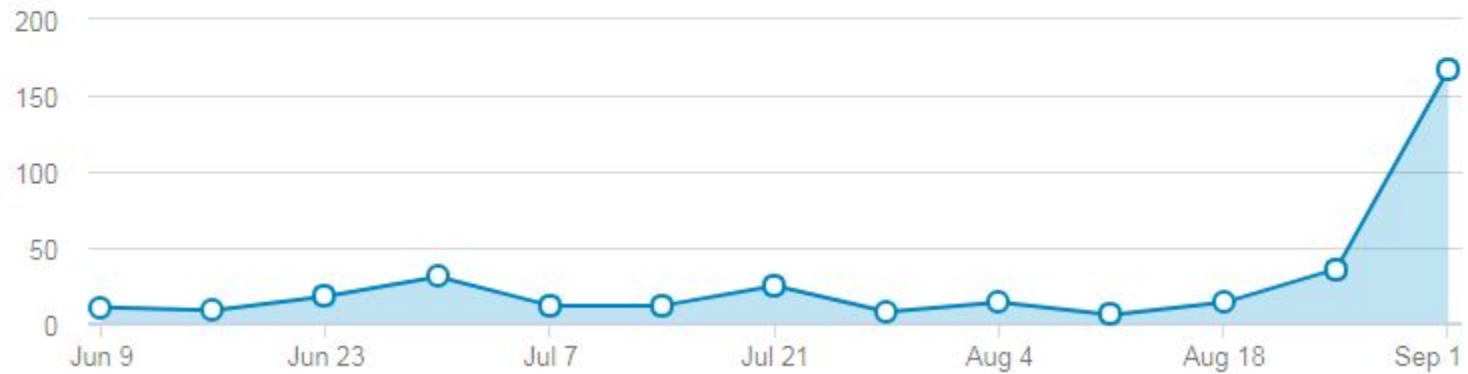

- Five questions, just to make sure you're the one who completed the exam
- Should not take longer than thirty minutes
- There's no other person interviewing you, it's all automated!

- Professional experience: 1.5 years in Android & 1.5 years in Rails
- Study preparation: 3-4 days
- Complete the examination: 7 hours
- Complete the exit interview: 15 minutes
